“Rather than isolating, simplifying, and controlling specific aspects of space in the singular pictures, the multiple, time based images in “Walks” transcend static description and use imprecision to animate the constant perceptual fluctuations that mark movement.”

– Allison Grant, Museum of Contemporary Photography

Walks continues Suzette Bross’ ongoing series in photography that utilize her body in motion to reflect on and reconstitute the everyday. The artist deconstructs the chronology of movement, building on her interest in the quotidian and the ephemeral. Her study of liminal spaces has evolved in Walks to a gridded pixilation that both documents and mimics the hypnotic rhythm of ambulatory motion.

Bross’ practice situates her in the company of an impressive range of artists - working in land art, conceptual art, street photography, and performance since the late 1960s - who have used walking as a means to create their work. Artists including Richard Long, Hamish Fulton, Sophie Calle, Marina Abramovic and many more have incorporated the act of wandering from epic journeys to intimate examination of their own immediate environments.

Exhibition hours/location:

Tuesday-Saturday: 12-6PM. Monday by appointment only. 185 Varick Street, NY, NY 10014
